2. The Seller shall be liable to the Buyer that the goods are free from defects upon receipt. In particular, the Seller is liable to the Buyer that at the time the Buyer took delivery of the goods:
 - 2.1. conforms to the agreed description, type and quantity, as well as quality, functionality, compatibility, interoperability and other agreed characteristics,
 - 2.2. it is suitable for the purpose for which the Buyer is acquiring it and to which the Seller has agreed; and
 - 2.3. the goods meet the requirements of the legislation.
3. The provisions referred to in Article 7.2 of the Terms and Conditions shall not apply to goods sold at a lower price to the defect for which the lower price was agreed, to the wear and tear of the goods caused by their normal use, in the case of second-hand goods to the defect corresponding to the level of use or wear and tear that the goods had when taken over by the Buyer, or if this results from the nature of the goods.

4. If the defect manifests itself within one year from the date of acceptance, the item shall be deemed to have been defective upon acceptance, unless the nature of the item or the defect precludes this. This period does not run for the time during which theBuyer cannot use the item if he has rightly complained about the defect.
5. TheBuyer may complain about a defect that becomes apparent within two years of receipt. If the item has a defect, theBuyer may demand its removal. He may, at his option, demand the delivery of a new item without defect or the repair of the item, unless the chosen method of removing the defect is impossible or disproportionately expensive compared with the other method; this shall be assessed in particular with regard to the significance of the defect, the value the item would have had without the defect and whether the defect can be removed by the other method without significant difficulty for theBuyer. TheSeller may refuse to remedy the defect if it is impossible or disproportionately costly to do so, having regard in particular to the significance of the defect and the value which the thing would have had without the defect.
6. TheSeller shall remedy the defect within a reasonable time after it has been pointed out so as not to cause theBuyer significant inconvenience, taking into account the nature of the item and the purpose for which theBuyer purchased the item. TheSeller shall take over the item at his own expense to remove the defect. If this requires the dismantling of the item, the assembly of which was carried out in accordance with the nature and purpose of the item before the defect became apparent, theSeller shall dismantle the defective item and assemble a repaired or new item or pay the costs thereof.
7. TheBuyer may demand a reasonable discount or withdraw from the purchase contract if:

 - 7.2. the defect manifests itself repeatedly,
 - 7.3. the defect is a material breach of the purchase contract, or
 - 7.4. it is evident from theSeller's statement or from the circumstances that the defect will not be remedied within a reasonable time or without significant inconvenience to theBuyer.
8. If the defect of the item is insignificant, theBuyer cannot withdraw from the purchase contract (within the meaning of Article 7.7 of the Terms and Conditions), it is assumed that the defect of the item is not insignificant.
9. The defect can be blamed on theSeller from whom the item was purchased. However, if another person is designated to carry out the repair, who is in the place of theSeller or in a place closer to theBuyer, theBuyer shall reproach the defect to the person who is designated to carry out the repair.

10. Except in cases where another person is designated to carry out the repair, the Seller is obliged to accept the complaint in any establishment where the acceptance of the complaint is possible with regard to the range of products sold or services provided, or even at its registered office. The Seller is obliged to issue a written confirmation to the Buyer when the Buyer submits the claim, stating the date on which the Buyer submitted the claim, what is its content, what method of claim settlement the Buyer requires and the Buyer's contact details for the purpose of providing information on claim settlement. This obligation also applies to other persons designated to carry out the repair.
11. The complaint, including the removal of the defect, must be settled and the Buyer must be informed of this within thirty (30) days of the date of the complaint, unless the Seller and the Buyer agree on a longer period. If the subject of the commitment is the provision of digital content, including digital content delivered on a tangible medium, or a digital content service, the complaint must be settled within a reasonable time, taking into account the nature of the digital content or digital content service and the purpose for which the Buyer requested it.
12. After the expiry of the time limit according to Article 7.11 of the Terms and Conditions, the Buyer may withdraw from the Purchase Contract or demand a reasonable discount.
13. The Seller is obliged to issue the Buyer with a confirmation of the date and method of handling the complaint, including confirmation of the repair and the duration of the repair, or a written justification for the rejection of the complaint. This obligation also applies to other persons designated to carry out the repair.
14. Whoever has a right from defective performance is also entitled to reimbursement of costs reasonably incurred in exercising this right. However, if the Buyer does not exercise the right to compensation within one month after the expiry of the period within which the defect must be pointed out, the court shall not grant the right if the Seller argues that the right to compensation was not exercised in time.
15. Other rights and obligations of the parties related to the Seller's liability for defects may be regulated by the Seller's complaint rules.
